

Staffordshire and Stoke-on-Trent Violence Reduction Strategy on a Page

Staffordshire and Stoke-on-Trent are safer places than others in the country. There is less violence.

It's still important to improve this by stopping bad things from happening and getting worse.

The Staffordshire and Stoke-on-Trent Violence Reduction Alliance or VRA is a group of people from different jobs who want to work together to stop violence happening.

5 things we will do to help build a safer Staffordshire and Stoke-on-Trent

- 1 Stop violence before it begins
- 2 Stop violence from getting worse
- 3 Help people involved in violence to make better decisions
- 4 Develop fair and reasonable punishment for those who commit violent offences
- 5 Teach people about serious violence and how to avoid it

How we will do it

We will ask people who live Staffordshire and Stoke-on-Trent what they think would help make Staffordshire and Stoke-on-Trent safer.

We will work with other people to understand why people get involved in violence so that we can prevent this from happening.

We will create new ways to help make Staffordshire safer.
